

Ai / Ais Richtersveld Transfrontier Park

In the heart of two age old desert, the Nama Karoo and the Succulent Karoo; and separated by the Orange River lie two enormously beautiful parks – the Ai / Ais Hot Springs Park on the Namibian side and the Richtersveld National Park on the South African side. The areas in question boast the world's richest range of desert flora, and international diamond-carrying river, the second largest canyon in the world and desolate landscapes – perfectly designed by nature over millions of year, where one finds succulent plant species and desert adapted wildlife.

In light of the hauntingly beautiful and rugged but yet fragile nature of these landscapes that spread over two biomes, a treaty was signed in 2003 between the Namibian and South African governments to connect the Ai / Ais and Richtersveld National Parks and form a transfrontier park.

Joint management of the park by the South African and Namibian authorities ensures that the parks are not managed as islands but as integrated conservation landscapes, an ideology that ensures the survival of the plant and wildlife diversity in the area.

Ai / Ais Hot Springs Spa

Ai / Ais Hot Springs Spa is an oasis amidst the tough and arid terrain of the Fish River Canyon. Situated at the end of this massive phenomenal geological formation, the camp is built on thermal hot springs originating deep below the river bed. One of the springs has its eye inside the camp.

Hobas Camp Site

Hobas is located 10km from the main view point of the Fish River Canyon. The camp offers camp sites set out amongst shady trees, and is the ideal overnight stop for visitors that aim to hike the Fish River Canyon trail.
